INTRODUCTION

Internships play an important role in bridging the gap between academic learning and practical experience. They provide students with an opportunity to understand real-world challenges, develop professional skills, and gain exposure to different working environments. Through internships, students can enhance their knowledge, improve communication and teamwork skills, and gain a better understanding of organizational functioning.

As a part of the Bachelor of Technology (B.Tech) program in Computer Science and Engineering (Artificial Intelligence & Machine Learning) at IILM University, Greater Noida, I undertook an internship at Jagran Kalyan Bharti, Forbesganj, Bihar. The internship commenced on 1 June 2026 with the objective of understanding the functioning of a non-governmental organization and its contribution towards social welfare and community development.

The internship provided me with an opportunity to learn about various social and developmental issues prevalent in Araria district, Bihar. Being a border district near Nepal, Araria faces several challenges such as poverty, migration, recurring floods, lack of educational awareness, child labour, child marriage, and human trafficking risks. Understanding these issues helped me appreciate the importance of community-based interventions and awareness programs.

During the internship, I gained valuable insights into the working structure of an NGO, its role in addressing social challenges, and the efforts made towards improving the lives of vulnerable communities. This experience enhanced my understanding of social responsibility, community engagement, and the importance of sustainable development initiatives.

This report presents an overview of the internship experience, the socio-economic conditions of the region, the activities undertaken during the internship period, and the key learnings gained throughout the internship.

ABOUT JAGRAN KALYAN BHARTI

Jagran Kalyan Bharti (JKB), Forbesganj, is a non-governmental organization working for social welfare, community development, and the protection of vulnerable sections of society. The organization primarily works at the grassroots level and focuses on issues affecting children, women, families, and economically weaker communities. Its major areas of work include prevention of child labour, child marriage, human trafficking, child exploitation, substance abuse, and the promotion and protection of child rights.

The organization conducts various awareness programmes, community meetings, workshops, field visits, surveys, and outreach campaigns to educate people about important social issues. Through direct interaction with local communities, JKB encourages people to recognize harmful social practices and actively participate in creating a safer environment for children. It also provides information regarding government welfare schemes, child protection mechanisms, helpline services, and other forms of assistance available to vulnerable families.

Jagran Kalyan Bharti works in coordination with different stakeholders such as local administration, police authorities, educational institutions, Panchayati Raj representatives, community leaders, and social workers. Such coordination helps the organization reach communities effectively and strengthens collective efforts toward social welfare and child protection.

The organization also collaborates with Just Rights for Children, New Delhi, for child protection and awareness initiatives. These collaborative efforts help in organizing campaigns and programmes aimed at creating awareness against child labour, child marriage, trafficking, and other forms of exploitation.

During my internship, I observed how Jagran Kalyan Bharti combines community participation, awareness, field-level intervention, and institutional coordination to address social challenges. Working with the organization provided me with practical exposure to the functioning of an NGO and helped me understand the important role played by civil society organizations in bringing positive and sustainable change at the grassroots level.

OVERVIEW OF ARARIA DISTRICT

Araria is one of the northeastern districts of Bihar and is situated near the Indo-Nepal border. The district is known for its geographical significance, cultural diversity, and predominantly rural population. Agriculture serves as the primary source of livelihood for a large section of the population, with many families depending on farming and allied activities for their income.

Despite its strategic location and agricultural potential, Araria faces several developmental challenges. The district is frequently affected by floods during the monsoon season due to rivers originating from the Himalayan region and neighboring Nepal. These floods often cause damage to infrastructure, agriculture, and livelihoods, thereby affecting the socio-economic conditions of local communities.

The district also faces challenges related to poverty, unemployment, migration, limited access to quality education and healthcare services, and lack of awareness regarding government welfare schemes. Many rural households continue to struggle with economic insecurity, which impacts their overall quality of life.

Being a border district, Araria experiences significant population movement and migration. This geographical characteristic creates both opportunities and challenges for local development. Various government agencies and social organizations work in the district to address developmental concerns and improve the living conditions of vulnerable communities.

In recent years, several initiatives have been undertaken to promote education, healthcare, women empowerment, child welfare, and community development. Non-governmental organizations play an important role in supporting these efforts by creating awareness, conducting outreach activities, and encouraging community participation in developmental programs.

Understanding the socio-economic background of Araria district was an important part of my internship experience, as it helped me gain insight into the challenges faced by local communities and the significance of social welfare interventions at the grassroots level.

CHILD PROTECTION AND WELFARE CAMPAIGN IN ARARIA

June 2026 marked an important period for child protection and social welfare initiatives in Araria district, Bihar. During this period, various awareness campaigns, training programs, community meetings, field visits, and district-level activities were organized with the objective of promoting child rights and addressing issues affecting vulnerable children and communities.

The initiatives were carried out through the collaborative efforts of Jagran Kalyan Bharti, District Administration Araria, Just Rights for Children (JRC), District Child Protection Unit, Labour Resources Department, Social Welfare Department, Police Administration, District Legal Services Authority, educational institutions, Panchayati Raj representatives, Development Mitras, Anganwadi workers, and community stakeholders. These coordinated efforts aimed to strengthen child protection mechanisms and increase public awareness regarding children's rights and welfare.

The major focus areas of the campaign included prevention of child labour, child marriage, human trafficking, child sexual abuse, school dropout prevention, promotion of education, community awareness, and linkage of vulnerable families with government welfare schemes. Special attention was given to creating awareness among children, parents, teachers, local representatives, and community members regarding their roles and responsibilities in ensuring the safety and development of children.

Various programs were conducted at schools, village communities, government offices, block headquarters, and public places across different parts of Araria district. These activities included awareness campaigns, training sessions, field assessments, child labour identification drives, welfare scheme awareness programs, review meetings, community interactions, and child protection initiatives. Public participation and inter-departmental coordination played a significant role in the successful implementation of these activities.

My internship at Jagran Kalyan Bharti was undertaken during this significant period of social intervention and community engagement. The internship provided me with an opportunity to closely observe the planning, implementation, monitoring, and evaluation of various child protection and welfare initiatives at the grassroots level. Through active participation in these activities, I gained valuable insights into the challenges faced by vulnerable communities and the collective efforts required to promote child rights, social justice, and sustainable community development.

The activities documented in this report represent my learning experiences and field exposure gained during this campaign period and reflect the important role played by government institutions, non-governmental organizations, and local communities in building a safer and more supportive environment for children.

MAJOR CHALLENGES IN ARARIA

Araria district faces a number of socio-economic and developmental challenges that affect the quality of life of its residents. Poverty remains one of the major concerns, with many families depending on agriculture and daily wage labour for their livelihood. Limited employment opportunities often result in migration to other states in search of better income and living conditions.

The district is also prone to recurring floods, which frequently damage crops, homes, roads, and public infrastructure. These natural disasters not only affect economic stability but also disrupt education and healthcare services. In addition, issues such as child labour, school dropouts, and child marriage continue to impact the growth and development of children and youth in certain communities.

Due to its proximity to the Indo-Nepal border, Araria is vulnerable to challenges related to human trafficking and child trafficking. Lack of awareness regarding education, healthcare, sanitation, legal rights, and government welfare schemes further limits the ability of people to improve their socio-economic conditions. Women empowerment and access to quality education and healthcare also remain important areas requiring attention.

These challenges highlight the need for continuous efforts by government agencies, local authorities, and non-governmental organizations to promote awareness, social welfare, community participation, and sustainable development in the district.

ACTIVITIES

ORIENTATION AND UNDERSTANDING OF ORGANIZATIONAL WORK

(1 June 2026 – 3 June 2026)

During the initial three days of the internship, I underwent an orientation program at Jagran Kalyan Bharti, Forbesganj, Bihar. The primary objective of this phase was to familiarize myself with the organization, its working structure, objectives, and various social welfare activities undertaken in the region.

I was introduced to the mission and vision of the NGO and gained an understanding of its role in community development, social awareness, child welfare, women empowerment, and educational initiatives. Discussions with the NGO staff helped me understand the organizational framework, ongoing projects, and the importance of community participation in development activities.

As part of the orientation process, I also studied the socio-economic conditions of Araria district and learned about various challenges faced by local communities. These included poverty, unemployment, migration, recurring floods, child labour, child marriage, human trafficking, lack of awareness regarding education and healthcare, and issues affecting vulnerable sections of society.

The orientation period also provided an opportunity to understand how awareness campaigns, community engagement programs, and welfare initiatives are planned and implemented at the grassroots level. Through interactions with NGO representatives and community members, I gained valuable insights into the practical role of non-governmental organizations in addressing social issues and promoting sustainable development.

The knowledge gained during this phase helped me develop a clear understanding of the objectives of the internship and prepared me for active participation in subsequent organizational activities.

ACTIVITIES

4 jUNE (Day 4th)

On 4 June 2026, a district situation assessment was conducted through a field survey to understand the existing child protection scenario in Araria district. The survey aimed to identify key issues affecting children, including child labour, child marriage, human trafficking, school dropout, and limited awareness about child rights. Visits were made to different localities where interactions were held with community members, parents, and field volunteers to gather first-hand information regarding the socio-economic conditions of vulnerable families.

During the survey, special attention was given to understanding the factors that increase the risk of child exploitation and the challenges faced by children in accessing education, healthcare, and government welfare schemes. Discussions also highlighted the need for stronger community participation and better coordination among local stakeholders to ensure children's safety and well-being.

The observations collected during the field survey provided valuable insights into the ground realities of the district. This assessment helped the organization identify priority areas for intervention and served as the foundation for planning awareness campaigns, community meetings, and child protection activities throughout the internship period.

The field survey also helped in identifying villages and communities that required immediate awareness and intervention. Team members interacted with local stakeholders to understand the existing child protection mechanisms and the level of community participation in safeguarding children's rights. Information gathered during the survey was carefully documented for future planning and implementation of awareness programs. The exercise provided practical exposure to field-based social work and strengthened my understanding of community assessment techniques.

ACTIVITIES

INTERNSHIP COMPLETION AND FINAL INTERACTION

On 30 June 2026, I successfully completed my one-month internship at Jagran Kalyan Bharti, Forbesganj. The final day marked the conclusion of an enriching learning experience that provided me with valuable exposure to community development, child protection initiatives, and grassroots-level social work. It also offered an opportunity to reflect on the knowledge, practical skills, and experiences gained throughout the internship.

The day began with a review of the activities conducted during the internship period. Discussions were held with the project team regarding the various awareness programmes, workshops, field visits, coordination meetings, and community outreach initiatives organized throughout the month. The overall progress of the child protection campaign was reviewed, and the impact of collective efforts in promoting child rights and preventing child labour, child marriage, child trafficking, and other forms of child exploitation was discussed.

I also had the opportunity to interact with the members of the organization and receive valuable feedback regarding my participation, dedication, and performance during the internship. They shared their experiences of working at the grassroots level and emphasized the importance of patience, empathy, teamwork, and community participation in achieving meaningful social change. These discussions helped me understand the practical challenges faced by social workers and the importance of sustained efforts in protecting children's rights and ensuring their overall well-being.

The internship enabled me to observe how government departments, non-governmental organizations, local representatives, educational institutions, law enforcement agencies, and community members work together to address social issues. Through field surveys, awareness campaigns, community meetings, workshops, and stakeholder interactions, I gained practical insights into the planning, implementation, and monitoring of social welfare programmes. These experiences strengthened my communication, coordination, documentation, observation, and problem-solving skills while enhancing my confidence in interacting with diverse communities.

ACTIVITIES

Completing this internship has been a significant milestone in my academic journey. It provided me with an opportunity to bridge the gap between classroom learning and real-world social development practices. The experience deepened my understanding of child rights, community engagement, and the role of civil society organizations in promoting inclusive and sustainable development.

As I concluded my internship, I expressed my sincere gratitude to the President, project team, and all members of Jagran Kalyan Bharti for their constant guidance, encouragement, and support throughout the internship period. Their mentorship made this learning experience both meaningful and memorable. I look forward to applying the knowledge, values, and practical experience gained during this internship in my future academic, professional, and social endeavors.

MEDIA COVERAGE OF ACTIVITIES

During the internship, various awareness campaigns and community outreach activities conducted by Jagran Kalyan Bharti received coverage in local and regional newspapers. The reports highlighted the organization's initiatives against child marriage, child labour, human trafficking, substance abuse, and child exploitation. The media coverage also acknowledged the participation of university student interns, including my involvement in spreading awareness among communities during the campaign. These reports helped the campaign reach a wider audience beyond the areas where the activities were directly conducted. The newspaper coverage reflected the social relevance and public impact of the initiatives undertaken during the internship. It also provided valuable recognition to the collective efforts of the organization, community members, and student interns toward promoting child rights, protection, and social awareness.

CONCLUSION

The internship at Jagran Kalyan Bharti, Forbesganj, from 1 June 2026 to 30 June 2026 was a highly enriching and valuable learning experience. It provided me with an opportunity to move beyond classroom learning and understand the practical aspects of community development, child protection, and social welfare at the grassroots level. Throughout the internship, I actively participated in awareness campaigns, field surveys, community meetings, workshops, training programmes, stakeholder interactions, and coordination activities conducted across different parts of Araria district.

One of the most significant aspects of this internship was the opportunity to interact with people from diverse communities, including children, parents, women groups, local representatives, government officials, police personnel, SSB officials, teachers, social workers, and members of various community organizations. These interactions helped me understand the real-life challenges faced by vulnerable children and families, particularly in border areas where issues such as child labour, child marriage, human trafficking, school dropout, and lack of awareness continue to affect many communities.

The internship also provided valuable exposure to the collaborative efforts of government departments and non-governmental organizations. I observed how organizations such as the District Administration, District Child Protection Unit, Labour Department, Police Administration, District Legal Services Authority, educational institutions, and Jagran Kalyan Bharti worked together to promote child rights and strengthen community participation. Participating in district-level awareness programmes, field visits, community outreach activities, police coordination meetings, and public awareness campaigns enhanced my understanding of the importance of teamwork, effective communication, and inter-departmental coordination in addressing social issues.

Throughout the internship, I developed practical skills in communication, community interaction, observation, documentation, reporting, teamwork, planning, and public awareness. The field-based activities improved my confidence in interacting with people from different backgrounds and enhanced my ability to understand social problems through direct observation rather than theoretical knowledge alone. The experience also strengthened my sense of social responsibility and highlighted the importance of empathy, leadership, and community participation in creating sustainable social change.

Overall, this internship has been one of the most meaningful learning experiences of my academic journey. It enabled me to apply my knowledge in real-life situations while gaining a deeper understanding of child protection, community development, and social welfare initiatives. The guidance and support provided by the team at Jagran Kalyan Bharti played an important role in making this internship successful and enriching. I am confident that the knowledge, practical exposure, and professional values gained during this internship will contribute significantly to my future academic pursuits and professional career, while inspiring me to remain committed towards social responsibility and community service.
